Trio starts 'memorial garden' in Southport park

Janet Branaman, Marsha Beebe and Valencia Black started a garden in memory of Black's grandmother

By Daryl Fisher
Features Editor

Three local neighbors, Janet Branaman, Marsha Beebe and Valencia Black (pictured above, left to right), have started a memorial garden for Valencia's late grandmother, Alice V. Docker, who died in 2009. The garden is in Poquito Park, which is located on Summerfield Drive in Southport, just a few blocks off of Linden Road.

"My grandmother loved working with her hands in her yard and especially enjoyed watching the birds make their nests," said Valencia. "She would wait every morning for her blue jays to come land on her table so she could feed them out of her hands."

All of the rocks and pebbles for the memorial garden were donated by Janet, and more than three dozen plants were provided by Marsha, along with some cactus from Valencia's grandmother's yard in Santa Barbara.

"We are hoping people in the community will now enjoy walking by Poquito Park and also donate a plant, rock or tree in the memory of a loved one," said Janet.

"We are also hoping that West Sacramento Parks and Recreation will come through with a bench or two for those who just want to sit and enjoy the garden. It would also be nice if someone would start planting on the other side of the park. It's been a very rewarding project and we hope everyone will stop by and enjoy the new look at Poquito Park."

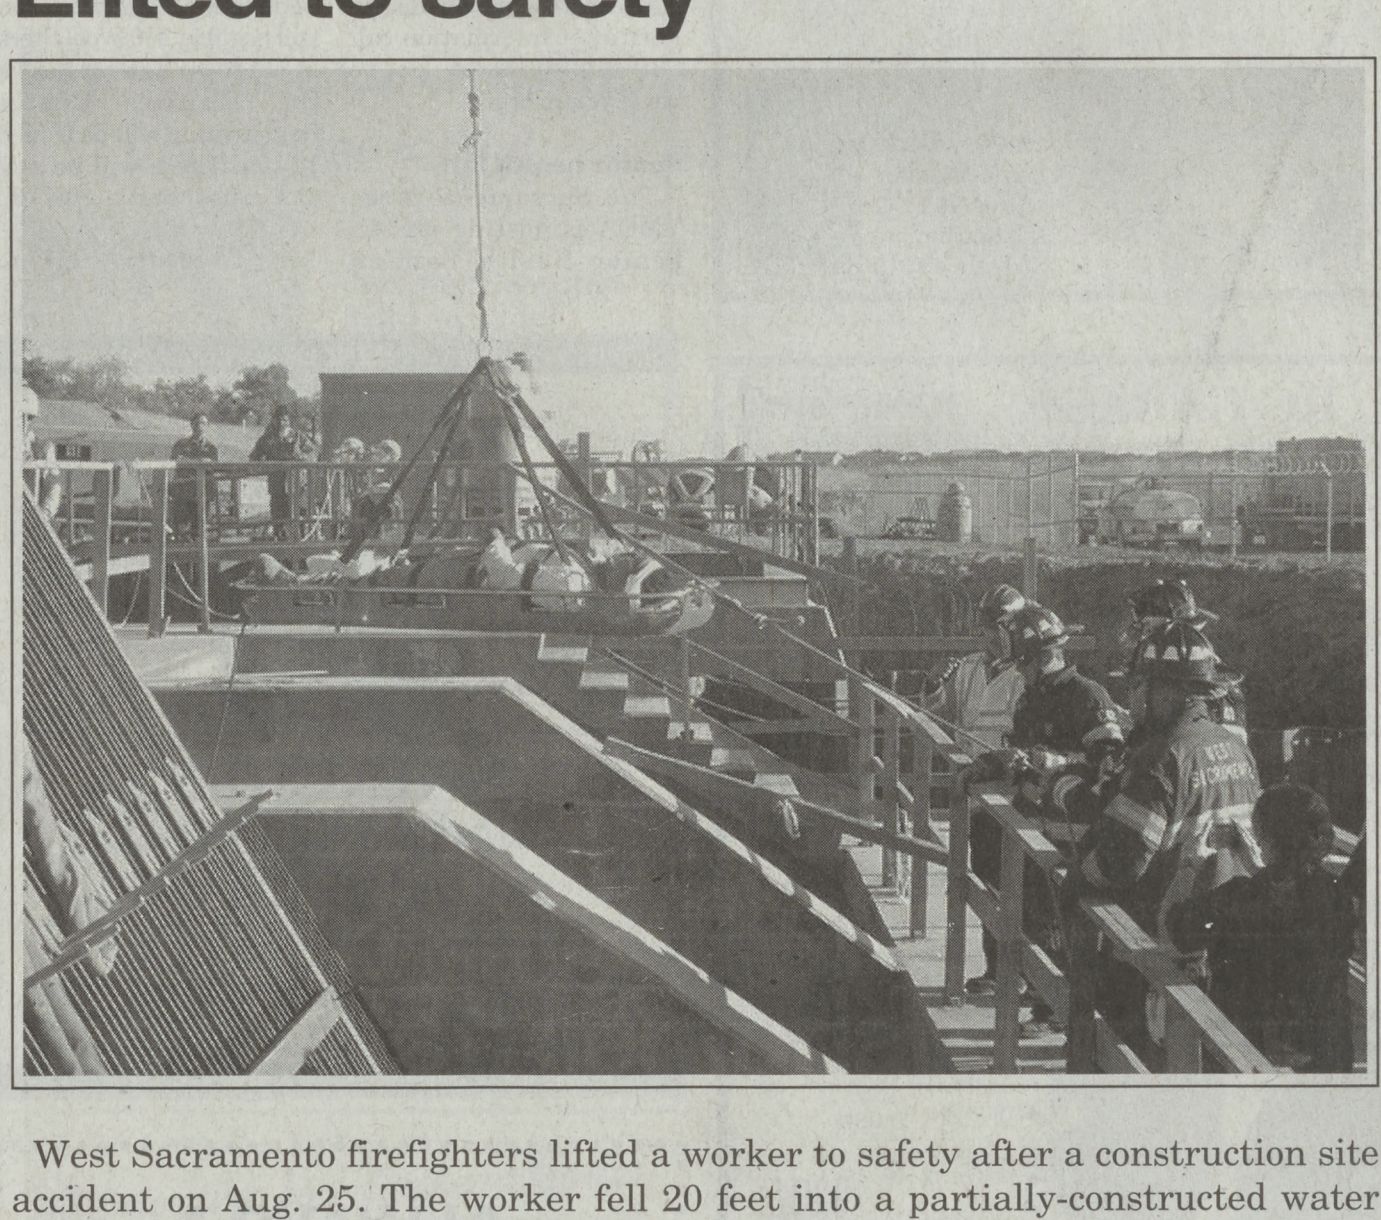
Lifted to safety



West Sacramento firefighters lifted a worker to safety after a construction site accident on Aug. 25. The worker fell 20 feet into a partially-constructed water vault at 5000 Jefferson Boulevard, in the southern portion of the city.

The rescue required a "technical" extraction of the worker, who was found to have suffered a compound fracture in one leg. About 50 minutes after their arrival, rescue workers had him back up at ground level and on the way to UCD Medical Center.

Extra trucks will be on Jefferson until early October

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

Where is all that truck traffic going?

Some West Sacramentans have notice a lot of construction-related trucks pouring off the freeway onto Jefferson Boulevard and the heading south. It turns out the trucks are part of the same Clarksburg project that generated a similar burst of truck traffic on Jefferson last year.

The trucks come from the eastern Sacramento area. They are headed to a grape crush facility construction project at Bogle Delta Winery in Clarksburg, carrying loads of fill dirt.

Ryan Luttrell is project manager for general contractor Rudolph & Sletten on the project. In a letter to city officials, he apologized for not detailing the operation earlier, since it affects West Sacramento street traffic.

"Currently, we are hauling 80 trucks a day and they are making five trips per day," wrote Luttrell. "This operation will be complete at the end of the day Monday, August 30. We will then stop hauling operations for approximately five days before we begin hauling trucks again. This pattern will continue to the beginning of October with dirt being hauled for six continuous days and then stop hauling for five days."

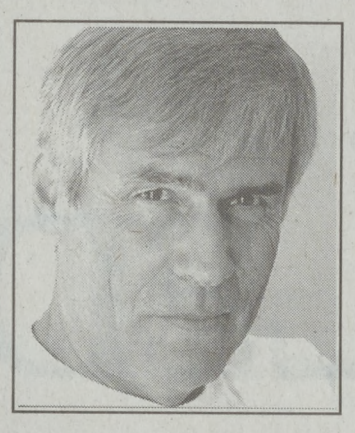
The exact schedule is tentative, he said.

"We also have concrete pours taking place twice a week at night and there will be concrete trucks heading down Jefferson from approximately 3 a.m. to 9 a.m. for the next several weeks," he added.

The city's commercial traffic enforcement officer is aware of the truck traffic.

Slow down, and live to see another sunrise

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

Almost 15 years ago, I wrote a column entitled, "The one phone call a parent never wants to receive", and it went something like this:

"Am I speaking to the father of Carrie Lynn Fisher?"

"Yes," I answered, sure I had never heard the deep male voice before.

"My name is Officer Wilson," he said almost matter-of-factly. "I'm with the CSUS Campus Police."

"Is there something the matter?" I quickly asked with concern, aware that my daughter was out at the college attending a night class.

"I'm afraid so," he said reluctantly. "Your daughter has been in an automobile accident at the intersection of J Street and...."

"Is she okay?" I blurted out before he could finish his sentence.

"She's fine," he assured me, which allowed my heart to start beating again. "I've got her right here in the patrol car with me. It looks like she just has a pretty bad bump on the head, but the front of her car appears to be totaled. I've already called a tow truck. How long do you think it will take you to get here? She may need to see her doctor."

"Ten minutes!" I said as I threw down the phone and raced out the front door.

When I pulled up to the scene of the accident and saw the extent of the damage to my daughter's vehicle, I began to worry that maybe she had been hurt worse than the police officer had said. But when she jumped out of the police car and rushed over and gave me a big hug, everything thankfully seemed to be in the right place.

"You alright?" I asked her.

"Yeah, just a few bruises and a pretty bad headache."

"Was anybody in the other car hurt?" I asked, wondering in fact where the other car was.

"No," explained my daughter. "He was fine, and after we exchanged insurance information and he talked to the police officer for awhile, he just drove away."

"So what in the world happened?" I asked, trying hard not to raise my voice as I often do when I'm worried about one of my kids.

"Well," said my daughter reluctantly, "I think it was my fault."

"I already know that," I said, fully aware that the accordion-like appearance of the front end of her car had to mean that she had run into the back of the other vehicle. "Were you driving too close to the car in front of you again?"

"Not exactly," she said, obviously in no hurry to get into the details of the accident.

"Carrie, how many times do I have to tell you that you need to slow down and drive more defensively? That's the whole key to driving safely! That's why there are speed limits, and when you go just ten or fifteen miles per hour over the speed limit, that takes away your ability to react safely to what's going on in front of you!"

"Please, Dad, no lectures tonight, okay. My head really hurts. It hit the windshield pretty hard." She pointed to where her windshield had shattered. "Good thing I inherited your big hard head, huh?" she added with a forced smile.

"Weren't you wearing your seat belt?

"Well, not exactly," she mumbled.

As the anger inside of me began to build, I wanted to grab my beloved daughter by the shoulders and shake her until she completely understood the following: All parents live under the very comforting illusion that if they spend what sometimes seems like every waking minute of every single day for 21 years or so properly raising their children, then those children will somehow grow into responsible and mature young adults who will no longer worry us to death. And after we have put in those 21 long and hard years, the very last thing we ever want to get is a bloody phone call in the middle of the night informing us that our child's life has been snuffed out in a senseless automobile accident.

Later that evening, with my only daughter safely at home, I found myself thanking God that the accident hadn't been a whole lot worse and worrying about the fact that I also had three teenage sons who would soon be wanting to spend countless hours behind the wheel of a moving vehicle, which finally brings me to what happened this past week.

This time, I didn't get the phone call, my poor wife did. And this time, it wasn't my daughter, but my youngest son who had plowed into the back of a stopped car as he came flying off the I-80 freeway ramp at the very dangerous intersection of Jefferson and Park boulevards. But everything else was pretty much the same – driving too fast to be able to recognize that there was a traffic jam in front of him; slamming into the back of a poor lady who could have been seriously injured; a totaled car with the front end looking like an accordion; and of course his ignoring countless lectures I had given him over the years about obeying speed limits and driving defensively.

So, to my son, and to any other young adult with a driver's license who may come across this column who thinks driving too fast is no big deal, what's it going to take before you figure out that speed limits are there for good reasons and that getting to wherever it is you're going a few minutes sooner is never worth the loss of the only life you're ever going to get? And if you can't bring yourself to drive safely for your own well-being, you might at least take into consideration the fact that your parents didn't spend all those years raising you and loving you so that we could end up in a hospital ICU room talking to a team of doctors about their organ donation program.

Slow the hell down!

Said the officer: "Your daughter has been in an automobile accident at the intersection of J Street and...."

SPORTS INSIDER

By Richard Novoa

The Sacramento River Cats (74-62) continued their push for their ninth Pacific South Division Title by winning four of five games in the Highway 99 series against the Fresno Grizzlies. The 2009 season marked the Sacramento River Cats' 10th in California's Capital City.

During their first decade in Sacramento and playing at Raley Field in West Sacramento, the River Cats have won four Pacific Coast League Championships including back-to-back PCL Championships in 2003 & 2004 and again in 2007 & 2008. The team has also won eight PCL South Division Championships (2000, 2001, 2003, 2004, 2005, 2007, 2008, 2009).

The Cats only have eight games remaining in the season and now own the tiebreaker (8-8) against the Grizzlies and also own a better division record 28-16 compared to the Grizzlies 21-27 divisional record. The Gatos play their next four games at home against Las Vegas before traveling to Colorado Springs for a four game season finale.

The Grizzlies on the other hand play four games at Salt Lake City before concluding their season with four games at home against Tacoma. If the Cats make the playoffs, the first round of the playoffs would start on September 8 & 9th at Raley Field.

The River Cats were inspired on Saturday night just before beating the Grizzlies 12-4 by handing out their annual player awards. Team MVP – Chris Carter; Best Cats teammate; - Dustin Hughes; Most improved player – Michael Taylor; Most exciting Player – Corey Wimberly; Pitcher of the Year – Clay Mortensen; Defensive Player – Matt Carson.

NFL Highlights

The 49ers (3-0) won the first installment of the "Battle of the Bay" by beating the Raiders (2-1) 28-24 last Saturday night in Oakland. The two teams will meet in a regular season game in San Francisco on Sunday, October 17th.

The Niners escaped without any major injuries but they did lose offensive lineman Joe Staley with a knee sprain and Brian Westbrook strained his hamstring. Both players should be ready for the season opener. The good news for 49ers fans was the signing of nose tackle, Aubrayo Franklin, to a one-year $7 million dollar contract.

Oakland's quarterback problems took a big hit when Niners blitzed Jason Campbell on two successive plays and injuring Campbell's throwing wrist and then sacked the QB again hurting his neck. Campbell, who completed 6-8 passes for 93 yards, should be OK for the season opener. His replacement Bruce Gradkowski had another good day behind center throwing for 202 yards and two touchdowns.

Diamond Notes

The A's (65-64) swept their three game series against the Texas Rangers last weekend but they still trail the division leading Rangers by 7 ½ games in the West. Of course, the A's could still win the Division title by winning 24 games in the remaining 33 games while Texas must lose 16 games in their final 32 contests.

Oakland still has a four game series at home against Texas on September 23-26th and the Rangers have 20 of their next 25 games on the road so it's never over until it's over!

What's up with the Giants starting pitchers? Barry Zito has lost three games in seven days by getting shelled again. Zito has lost six consecutive decisions and his ERA has risen above 4.00. Cy Young winner, Tim Lincecum has also lost five starts in a row and his ERA in August is 7.82. The G-Men pitchers are barely getting out of the first inning without major damage.

The Giants finally gained some ground on the division leading Padres, who have currently reached a season high four game losing streak! The Giants are five games behind the Padres and trail the Phillies by 1 ½ games in the NL wild card race and the St. Louis Cardinals are still in the playoff hunt.

The Giants will be at home for a few days before they travel down South to play the Dodgers during the Labor Day Holiday weekend. The A's will finish up their series in New York before returning to Oakland for 10 games against the Angels, Mariners and Red Sox.

Aztec's Picks

My boxer dog, Aztec, is still laying around the TV set trying to decide if he's returning for another year (Aztecs Picks) of picking College and NFL winners against the Las Vegas odds-makers spreads. We've had lots of fun with Aztec, who actually had a winning season last year, but my boy is now 13-years old, and in doggy years that about 91 years-old!

My other boxer pup (Kahili) is still a little young and hasn't mastered the art of football prognostication so pick up next week's sports insider for the announced retirement of Aztec or the introduction of King Kahili, the wonder-dog of sports picks.

Enjoy your day – see ya next week!

GOOD CITIZENSHIP

Doing Good With Wood

(NAPS)—Men and women who do good rarely seek the spotlight. But one wood-finishing company would like to honor them with its 2010 Community Craftsman Awards.

Helping to improve your community in projects that involve wood finishing could win you an award.

Past winners include groups and individuals who built and donated wooden holiday toys, high-school students who built a new house for a low-income family, and a former homeless man who now mentors at-risk youths at his furniture repair and refinishing business.

Entry is open to anyone who "does good with wood" by engaging in activities that involve wood finishing. Prizes include cash grants of up to $5,000, a supply of Minwax products, and a consultation with DIY expert and author Bruce Johnson.

The submissions deadline is Dec. 31, 2010. Send a summary of the project to Minwax Community Craftsman Award, c/o Brushfire, Inc., 2 Wing Drive, Cedar Knolls, NJ 07927. Visit www.minwax.com for more information.

Did You Know?

(NAPS)—Private mortgage insurance (PMI) offers premium plan structures that now make pricing very competitive. PMI pricing can be more affordable than FHA's for borrowers putting down 10–15 percent and can match FHA on loans with 5 percent down. A real mayor's race

It's just two months from the next election, and it's no secret: the mayor's race in West Sacramento will be very serious indeed.

Incumbent Christopher Cabaldon has drawn a qualified challenger in former mayor Greg Potnick. Although the two don't appear to differ very much on the large strategic questions facing the city, Potnick believes the current city officials have lost touch with their constituents.

First, a little history.

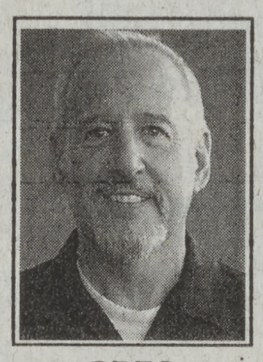
The city of West Sacramento was born in 1987. Potnick wasn't on the original city council, but was elected shortly afterward. At first, he served as the lone voice of dissent on a council that was too blindly in the thrall of land developers. Then he became senior member of his own majority faction on the city council.

Potnick has been a mayor before. He is currently retired from both city office and from the Department of Corrections after a career that included work as a parole agent.

Potnick deserves some of the credit for "professionalizing" city government; getting it away from the fast and loose, "I'll scratch your back, you scratch mine" style West Sacramento's government was born with. He was on board when the Southport Framework Plan and other crucial strategic decisions were made.

Cabaldon came to the city as an adult, winning election to the city council, and then in 1998 to the mayor's seat. He's been there since. He has also worked for the state legislature and for the community college system. He now works for a non-profit institute on higher education issues.

Cabaldon helped establish West Sacramento's "street cred" in the region by winning a fight with Sacramento about where to put Raley Field, and he has been remarkable in his work for regional planning and regional cooperation. He has helped attract a lot of state and federal money to local "smart growth" projects. He's been a great "vision guy."



GREG POTNICK: Once & future mayor?

CHRISTOPHER CABALDON: A regional success story?

Critics often blame Cabaldon, too much, for issues such as traffic congestion and other growth pains. Some of these problems were made inevitable by the city's early planning decisions.

Potnick believes that Cabaldon – whom he calls a "friend" and "confidante" — leads a city government that has forgotten how to listen to the public. Potnick was an early critic of the city's plans to bring the California Indian Heritage Center to the city riverfront, for example. He wants to restore more public participation in city government, and promises to put forth some specific proposals.

Both men are now well-rooted in the city – and indeed, they would no doubt share a lot of the same supporters were they not now facing off against each other (watch, anyway, for a lot of the same names to show up on both candidates' campaign balance sheets). Both men have connections to deep-pocketed supporters and to ardent volunteers. Both have campaigned before, and they know how to do it. And neither would be running for mayor this fall without the clear intention to win.

So the campaign will be well-funded and hard-fought.

It will be interesting to see where the various power centers line up in this race. Will the current political establishment tilt towards Cabaldon? Will labor unions swing to Potnick?

We'll see.

Letters to the Editor —

Terminator for life

So, Governor Arnold wants to borrow $64.7 million from the state's general fund for a new death row building at San Quentin. Since state executions are far less than one per year (due mainly to multiple appeals), most die waiting; thus, it seems time to end the state's death penalty. But let's also end the 3-strike/25 years to life because not only is it too costly, but too often those facing that potential 3rd strike behave desperately to prevent capture, causing wrecks and further injuries and deaths trying to escape.

But since Governor Arnold insists on a new death row, he should be appointed for life to oversee it.

Since he's known as the Terminator, who could be more appropriate?

GO FIGURE! by Linda Thistle

PICKS OF THE WEEK

"Tommy, the Movie" [Blu-ray] (PG) — Oliver Reed, Ann-Margret and Roger Daltrey star in Ken Russell's trippy production of The Who's legendary rock opera about a boy who becomes deaf, dumb and blind after catching his mother having an affair. Despite failed attempts by doctors and drug dealers to cure him and frequent episodes of physical abuse, Tommy grows up to become a Pinball Wizard and leader of a religious cult. With over-the-top performances from Tina Turner, Jack Nicholson, Keith Moon and Elton John, this 1975 rockstravaganza (yeah, I said it!) shifts frantically between high camp, low art and electric mayhem. Fans of Ann-Margret will also enjoy the musical number where she wears a crocheted catsuit and writhes seductively amongst a tsunami of chocolate and baked beans. Mee-ow!

"Playing For Time" (Unrated) — Based on the autobiography of Fania Fénelon, this Arthur Miller-penned 1980 production about the musicians of Auschwitz is possibly the best Holocaust film made for television. Vanessa Redgrave won an Emmy for her portrayal of Fénelon, a reknowned Jewish pianist who is spared from hard labor and placed in the death camp's female orchestra, where she and the other musicians are forced to play for their captors. "Playing For Time" is a heart-wrenching and powerful drama you simply must experience.

Peanuts —And last but not least, two classic Peanuts TV specials are being released on Blu-Ray this week: "It's the Great Pumpkin, Charlie Brown" and "A Charlie Brown Thanksgiving."

DOG OF THE WEEK

"MacGruber" Unrated Edition — Comedy is subjective. One person's laugh-riot can be a dreadful, tedious bore to another. So how can you know if "MacGruber" is the comedy film for you? Easy, just take this simple quiz: 1. Are you a boy between the ages of 10 and 10-and-a-half? 2. Do you have the IQ of a small sack of soggy, dead field mice? 3. Are you a resident of Idaho and are a potato or some species of weevil? If you answered "Yes" to any of the previous questions, then "MacGruber" is just your comedy speed.

Elton John

"MacGruber" is based on a series of tired, one-gag "SNL" sketches parodying the old "MacGyver" TV show, and the latest in a 30-year parade of horrible films based on "SNL" sketches ("It's Pat!" anyone?). Will Forte stars as MacGruber, an ex-special forces guy who comes out of retirement to thwart the evil machinations of Dieter Von Cunth (Val Kilmer), a mercenary who has stolen a nuclear bomb and is trying to retrieve the launch codes. The fact that the villain of the film is named Cunth pretty much sums up the high comedic standards of this film. Seriously, it's not even worth a rental.

Deluxe Cheesesteaks

The classic Philly Cheesesteak (thin slices of grilled steak on an Italian roll with melted cheese and grilled onions) is a South Philadelphia tradition dating back to the 1930s.

- 1/2 cup red wine vinegar
- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon coarsely ground black pepper
- 3 cloves garlic, crushed with garlic press
- 3 medium red and/or green peppers, cut lengthwise into quarters, seeds and stems discarded
- 2 medium red onions, cut into 1/2-inch-thick slices
- 2 (about 3/4 pound, 1 inch thick) beef top round steak
- 4 ounces Provolone cheese, shredded (1 cup)
- 4 8-inch hero rolls, split horizontally

1. In small bowl, mix vinegar, olive oil, salt, pepper, and garlic. Place peppers and onions in 1 large self-sealing plastic bag and steak in another. Add 2 tablespoons vinegar mixture to bag with vegetables and 1/4 cup mixture to bag with steak. Reserve remaining mixture. Seal bags, pressing out excess air. Marinate 15 minutes at room temperature.

2. Remove steak and vegetables from bags and place on grill over medium heat. Cook steak 15 to 20 minutes for medium-rare or until of desired doneness, turning steak once. Cook vegetables on grill with steak about 15 minutes or until browned and just tender, turning occasionally.

3. Transfer steak and vegetables to cutting board. Let steak stand 10 minutes to allow juices to set for easier slicing.

4. Meanwhile, sprinkle cheese over cut sides of rolls. Place rolls on grill, cheese side up, and cook over medium heat 3 minutes or until cheese melts. Transfer to platter.

5. To serve, thinly slice steak, cut peppers into strips, separate onion slices into rings. Pile steak, peppers and onions over melted cheese on bottom halves of rolls. Drizzle with reserved vinaigrette, and replace top halves of rolls, cheese-side down.

Hot Time in the Old Town: The Great Heat Wave of 1896 and the Making of Theodore Roosevelt
by Edward P. Kohn
(Basic Books, $27.95)
Reviewed by Larry Cox

The heat wave that lingered over New York City in early August 1896 killed nearly 1,300 people in Manhattan alone. It is considered one of the worst natural disasters of the late 19th century and claimed more lives than even the Chicago Fire of 1871.

For 10 oppressive days, temperatures in New York City hovered in the high 90s, and when combined with the humidity created a heat index well above 100 degrees F. This might not sound all that serious in this age of air conditioning, but a century ago when the sun baked the brick tenements of New York City, interior temperatures reached as high as 120 F. Corpses of horses that died from the heat littered the streets, and near riots ensued at police precincts where ice was distributed. The staggering death count was coupled with a shortage of coffins.

It isn't easy to blow the dust off of more than a century of history and make it relevant, but historian Edward P. Kohn has managed to do just that. Kohn humanizes the disaster's victims, and one almost can feel the hopelessness of tenement dweller John Hughes, who climbed out on a parapet to catch a breeze and fell to his death.

Theodore Roosevelt, the 37-year-old president of NYC's Board of Police Commissioners, witnessed the suffering first hand, and the misery he saw no doubt helped him formulate the progressive politics he later embraced.

One of the political victims was William Jennings Bryan, who had the misfortune of launching his national campaign during the horrific event. Five minutes into his speech at Madison Square Garden, more than half of the crowd had left because of the sweltering heat. As Kohn points out, in the blink of an eye, Bryan had all but lost the presidential race before even finishing his remarks.

The Kitchen Diva

BY Angela Shelf Medearis

A Healthy Start to a New School Year

Along with the clothes and supplies your child needs for the new school year, add eating healthy meals to the list. One of the best ways to ensure your child will have a productive and successful school year is to start each day with a healthy breakfast, pack a nutritious lunch, provide healthy snacks and end the day with a well-balanced family dinner. The foods your children eat now will affect their health as an adult. Start teaching your children how to eat well today for your good health tomorrow!

Remember the Food Guide Pyramid when selecting the items you buy and prepare for your child's meals. Nutritious food and physical activity can help your children:

- Feel good.
- Enjoy friends and family.
- Improve their ability to comprehend and retain information.
- Have pep and energy for sports and activities.
- Develop strength and endurance.
- Show interest and enthusiasm.
- Assure lifelong health.

Snacks also can be part of a nutritious meal plan. Some snacks will give your child a lot more nutrition for the money than others. Peanuts and popcorn cost about the same as a candy bar. Apples, oranges and bananas are full of vitamins and minerals. Sandwiches and pizza made with low-fat meats and cheese have lots of protein. Yogurt and milk drinks furnish plenty of calcium.

Teach your child how to plan, shop, cook and respectfully interact with others during meal-time discussions. Allow your child to assist you with planning weekly menus. Bring them along when you shop for groceries, and let them help select the items on the list. Teach them how to prepare their lunch, and let them help with the preparation of family meals. A child who helps with the planning, shopping and cooking is more likely to try a variety of foods. Teach your children how to set the table and to assist you with cleaning up after dinner.

Dinner with the family goes far beyond providing your child with a healthy meal. It helps bond the family together and keeps them in tune with what everyone is doing and thinking. Family discussions around the dinner table provide numerous teachable moments and will provide your child with invaluable skills for a long and healthy life!

This easy recipe for Oven-Baked Berry Toast is the perfect way to involve your children in the kitchen and start their day off in a healthy way. This kid-pleasing breakfast dish can be prepared the night before and bake while everyone is getting ready for school. The berries form delicious syrup for this all-in-one dish. Any leftovers can be re-heated in the microwave for breakfast the next morning.

OVEN-BAKED BERRY TOAST

- 1 (16-ounce) loaf whole wheat French bread or whole wheat or multi-grain rolls (cut into 1-inch-thick pieces; day-old bread works fine)
- 5 cups mixed berries (strawberries, raspberries, blackberries or blueberries — fresh or frozen — with juice)
- 1/4 cup sugar or agave syrup
- 1/2 teaspoon lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1 egg
- 4 egg whites
- 1 cup lowfat milk or soymilk
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 1 tablespoon honey or agave syrup

1. Preheat oven to 350 F.

2. Using a 2-quart oblong baking pan, mix together the berries, sugar or agave syrup, lemon juice and cinnamon. Spread the berries across the bottom of the pan in an even layer.

3. In a medium bowl, combine egg, egg whites, milk or soymilk and the vanilla. Add the bread and soak for 2 to 3 minutes, pushing the bread down into the liquid, and then turning and soaking the bread for 2 minutes more.

4. Arrange the bread in a single layer over the berries. Drizzle the bread with honey or agave syrup. Bake for 25-30 minutes or until the bread is golden and the custard is bubbling around the edges. Makes 10 servings.

LOCAL ITEMS

The Sacramento River registered 12 feet 5 inches, U. S. gauge at the Southern Pacific bridge, yesterday. This is a fall of nearly three feet since last week when the gauge registered 15 feet 2 inches and is accounted for only by the fact that the weather has been extremely cool delaying the melting of snow in the mountains.

Local fishermen may resume fishing on the Sacramento River on June 6th, although, to all intents and purposes, this is the closed season. The Fish and Game Commission has successfully put over so many foolish laws that they conflict and fishermen may reap the results.

Last Tuesday Earl Pankost took to Colusa 150 lengths of three-foot concrete pipe on board one of the Pankost barges. This is irrigation pipe that will be used in the rice fields. On the return trip he will load a large ditcher at Colusa and unload it at Knights Landing.

Two autos collided head-on yesterday afternoon at the crossing at Third and Ann streets. One was driven by D. Pellini of 1276 Pacific avenue, Sacramento, while the other was driven by a Knights Landing man who had taken on a large dose of jackass. Little damage was done to either automobile but the crash drew a great crowd for a few minutes.

Last Tuesday Constable Henry Buckingham sent back to San Francisco three youngsters about 14 years of age who had set out to see the world. When taken into custody here they claimed they had already seen all they wanted and were anxious to return home. Their parents were notified and funds were sent them for the return journey.

Pankost barge No. 6 is stranded at Knights Landing on a river bar since last Sunday, where it conveyed a party of Natomas employes for a picnic. During the night the river receded so much that the barge was left high and dry. Today the steamer San Joaquin No. 2 pulled the barge off the bar.

E. F. Johnson and wife were visitors for Memorial Day at the home of Mrs. Johnson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Buckingham. They returned to Stockton Monday evening.

Word has been received from Frank Buckingham that he is now located at San Diego and is congratulating himself that he did not succeed in getting a place on the lost U. S. S. Conestago. He tried to make the place but failed because a friend beat him to the job. The Conestago has been lost during the past two weeks; no trace having been found of the ship and all efforts to locate it having failed.

BOYS ESCAPE WITH SEVERE LECTURE FROM JUDGE BARRY

Last Tuesday Tony Rava and J. Borgoni, youths about 15 and 16 years of age, were given a severe lecture by Judge Barry because they had broken into the home of W. Murray, on the Herget place, and taken a revolver.

Murray refused to prosecute when the gun was returned to him, and this saved the boys from, at least, a term under probation.

The boys were arrested by Constable Buckingham, who believes that these young men must behave themselves or he will have no compassion on them.

Several boys around town are inclined to be rough and don't hesitate to commit petty infractions of the law that will not be countenanced by the Constable or Judge Barry.

There are several now who are under suspicion and who must mend their ways or be called before the juvenile courts.

It was fortunate for the above young men that Mr. Murray refused to prosecute.

FISHING SEASON BROUGHT POOR RETURNS TO MANY LOCAL MEN

The salmon season, which closed on May 31, was far from satisfactory to many local fishermen.

The early part of the season was of no use because of extremely high water which prevented the usual run of fish.

Later, when the river receded, some good catches were made, but that was at a time when the price dropped so low that only a small margin was left for the workingmen.

During Lent, when prices were good, very few fish were caught, and following Lent, when the demand was slow, prices dropped very much.

A great quantity was shipped to Eastern markets but practically none was mild-cured as has been the custom for many years past.

Farther north along the river during the month of May there were great quantities of fish caught, most of which was sent to the San Francisco markets.

South of Courtland and as far as Collinsville, good catches were made but few fish from that locality were sent to the Sacramento wholesalers.

The Pankost Boat and Fishery Co. had a fairly profitable season and is preparing to enlarge their facilities for handling future seasons.

ROAD BUILDING UNDER BOND ISSUE IS MOVING ALONG SWIFTLY

Yesterday the McGillivray Construction Company started laying the base of the county road between Rose orchard and the Sacramento weir.

During the past few days the concrete road extending through Riverbank was covered with a surfacing which measured two inches thick and now coincides with the road built from the Riverbank Inn to the concrete road above mentioned.

Yesterday afternoon Supervisors Leinberger, Russell and Hutchins, with County Engineer Proctor, viewed the work already done and were evidently well satisfied with the work of the contractors so far completed.

In laying the base of the road from Rose orchard to the Sacramento weir there is somewhat of a disagreement between the contractors and County Engineer Proctor.

Proctor wants the base of that section started at the weir, working backwards to Rose orchard. This the contractors don't want because it would mean a longer and harder haul.

The contractors are using the Clark & Henery plant in Sacramento hauling their base mixtures in trucks carrying a load of eleven tons. This they want to dump as they proceed northward in the road building.

Proctor believes that loads of this character will ruin a freshly laid base and objects to the building of the road in this way. He wants to start at the weir moving backwards to Rose orchard, so as to avoid taking great loads over the newly laid road.

The question has been referred to the district attorney as to the right of the contractors and the people with the probability of an early understanding.

The supervisors mentioned above went out yesterday to view the road construction and help along towards an amicable understanding in the construction of the roads.

The Westminister Presbyterian Church in Sacramento is having a large cellar excavated under the building.

Neighbors are asking how soon the stock will be stored.
